

Zebras and Ostriches

Zebras and ostriches roam together. Ostriches are the tallest and largest birds. They have the biggest eyes. They see far. They see from a high point. They see details very clearly. They're fast. But they also depend on zebras. Zebras have a great sense of smell. Together, ostriches and zebras see and smell predators. Predators are animals that hunt other animals for food.

Zebras call to each other when they sense predators. They warn others to run away. Ostriches know zebras' alarm call. They run away too.

Zebras and ostriches live on savannas. Savannas are warm grasslands.
