

Anglerfish

Anglerfish are bony fish. They live thousands of feet below the sea. They live in icy black water.

Females are predators. They go fishing for prey. Each female has a long, thin growth on its forehead. It looks like a fishing rod. It makes light. Anglerfish use it like a lure. They attract other fish to them. Then they eat them.

Male anglerfish attach themselves to the females.