Captain Kristin Nelson is a 23rd Bomb Squadron pilot. She got a new house. She was using a saw to do repairs on the house. She had an accident. She lost her left hand. She said, "It was crazy how it all happened." She stayed calm. She saved her hand. She put it on ice. But she was worried about her job. How can pilots fly without a hand? She said, "I started flying when I was 14 years old. It's part of who I am." A doctor put her hand back on. This operation rarely works. A doctor reattached the bones, veins, and muscles. She was able to fly 11 months later.

The boy blames the branches for the sound. Tree branches blow in the wind. They scrape the car. The girl believes him. But they keep hearing scraping sounds. The girl wants to go home again. She insists. The boy listens to her. They leave in a hurry. They speed off.

The boy takes the girl home. They're in her driveway. They get out of the car. They look at the door handle. They scream. They see a hook. The hook is hanging on the handle. The hook is bloody. It was ripped from a body.

In some stories, Hookman kills the teens.
